Blossom is a two-story with a porch you can sit on, and a house behind it sized to match.

Just over 900 square feet on the main level. A great room almost eighteen feet across, a kitchen with a pantry off to the side, and a dining room that opens through a door to the concrete patio for the July nights that ask for it. An optional drop zone with cabinets goes in at the entry, for the backpacks, the boots, and the mail nobody has opened yet.

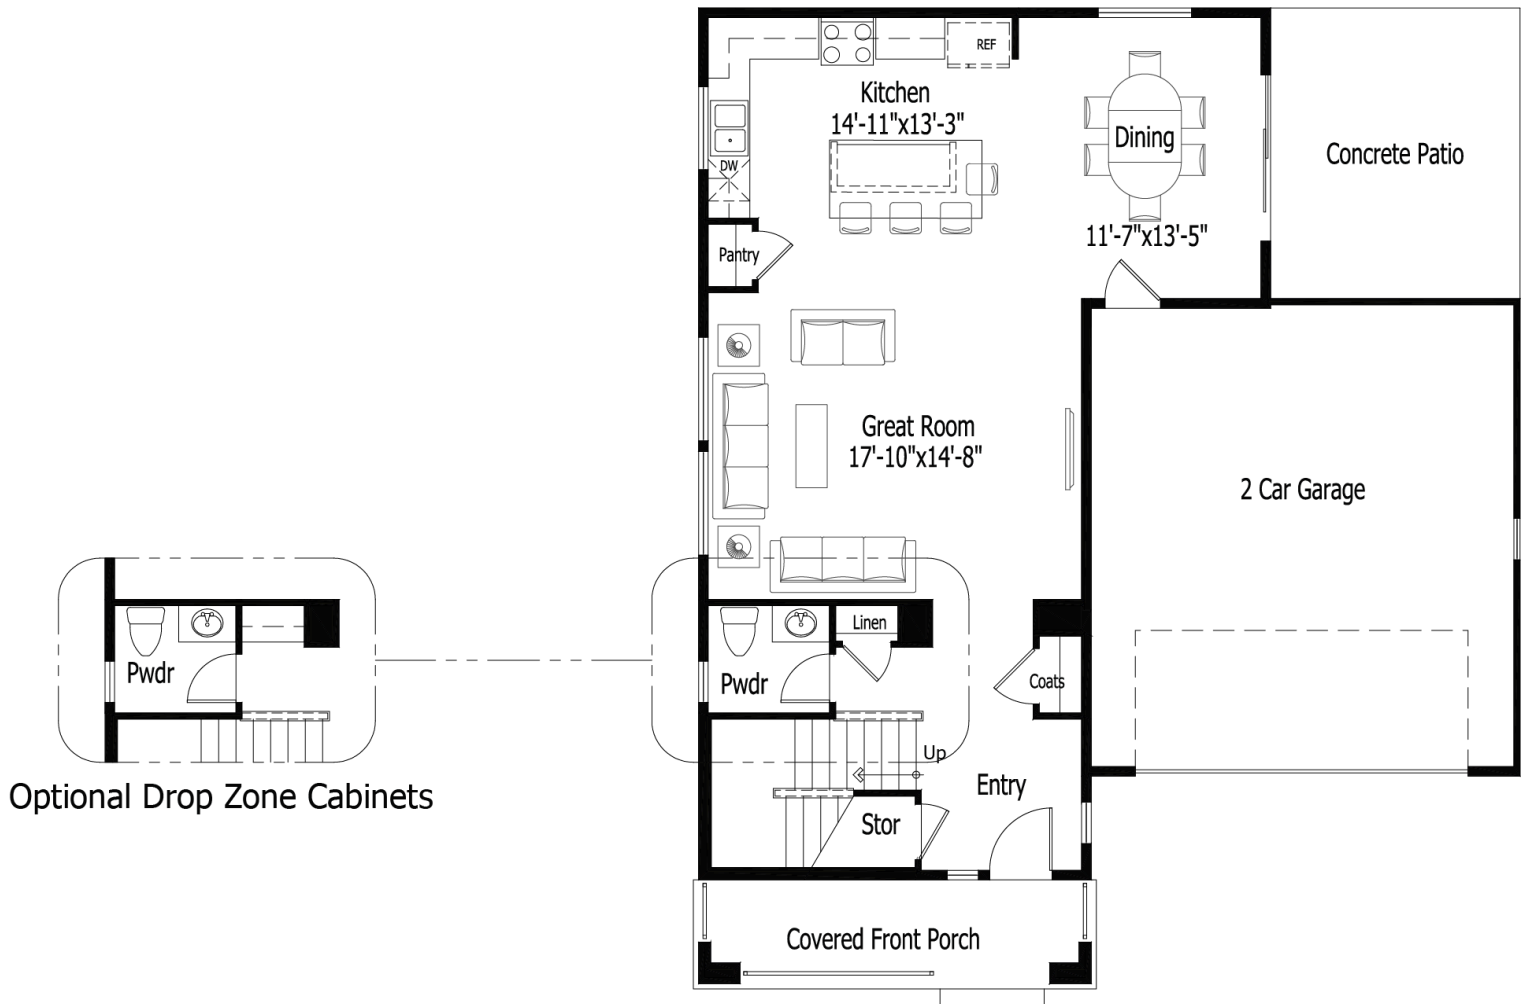

Upstairs, three bedrooms. The primary runs sixteen feet deep, with a walk-in closet and its own bath. Laundry is on this floor too, three steps from the hampers. At the top of the stairs, an optional built-in desk sets into the wall, right in the daily traffic. The kind of spot where a laptop stays out and a puzzle gets left overnight.

Small enough to keep, big enough to fill. The anchor of the block, defined by timeless character.

All square footage is approximate. Renderings are artist's conceptions and may vary slightly from the actual home. Homes may be built in reverse of plans shown, depending on site conditions. Minor architectural changes may be made occasionally at the option of the builder. Please contact your Sales Consultant for details.
