Sierra is the two-story that rewards households who like to keep their options open. The main-floor front room isn't committed to being a Living Room, or a Formal Dining, or a Study — but any of the three, depending on which the household needs more this year. Upstairs, a fifteen-foot loft that becomes a proper sixth bedroom on request — either by converting the loft, or by electing an exterior bump-out that preserves the loft entirely. Downstairs, a rec room stretching over twenty-two feet. Sierra never asks the household to decide now what it wants forever.

All square footage is approximate. Renderings are artist's conceptions and may vary slightly from the actual home. Homes may be built in reverse of plans shown, depending on site conditions. Minor architectural changes may be made occasionally at the option of the builder. Please contact your Sales Consultant for details.
